

Writing

Do you know that every letter has a sound? Do you know that if you put letters together you get a word? Do you know that if you put several words together you can write a story? I'm just learning about all of this, especially when I trace letters and try to write notes to you and my friends. I'm not quite ready to write a lot because the muscles in my fingers are still developing, but I like to experiment!

I, Paul, write this greeting in my own hand, which is the distinguishing mark in all my letters. This is how I write.

—2 Thessalonians 3:17, NIV
